1. Tatel Miami

Tatel Miami, a new restaurant at the Ritz-Carlton, South Beach, comes with a celebrity pedigree with partners including the singer Enrique Iglesias, tennis champion Rafael Nadal, and N.B.A. star Pau Gasol. It's the second location of the restaurant following the concept's debut in Madrid. Executive chef Nicolas Mazier, formerly of Nobu Miami, oversees a menu of Spanish fare combining dishes from the Madrid location as well as those new for Miami. The space seats 200 diners across its dining room, lounge, bar, and private dining room located behind the DJ booth. There are two semiprivate dining areas as well.
